HISTORY SHEET OF CHATTURBHAI JAVERBHAI AMIN.

This person is the brother of Govind Amin, and accompanied him to England in 1907. He is said to have gone through a course of jersey and stocking weaving in England and he returned to India in April 1909. While in London he was engaged for some time at the India House as a cook. After his return he stayed a few days in Bombay and then proceeded to his native place in the Kaira district. He stayed with his father about 3 weeks and returned to Bombay where he obtained employment as an unpaid candidate cutter in the Swadeshi Stores about the end of May. After training he proposed to open a tailoring place in Bombay, but in July 1909 he was still being supported by his father.

It was reported that Govind Amin had consigned some revolvers to Chatturbhai to smuggle into India but this has not been verified; it is possible, however, that some attempt of this kind may be made.
